Yankee Outrages in Nansmond and

Isle of Wight.

A gentleman direct from the neighborhood, informs us that the Yankee Vandals are roaming the counties of Nans-mond and Isle of Wight, meeting negroes,

bacon and horses, and arresting every citizen whose loyalty to the Confederate

States is known.

The following gentlemen have been arrested, some of them manacled, and dragged off to the Rip Rap: James O'Fallon,

E. Bev. Hunter, James M. Holland, Wm.

Lawrence, Alexander Ashburn, Robert R.

Pinner, Addison Ashburn, Captain Charles

Holland, J. Y. Conner, Mr. Norbert, Joseph Y. Conner, Charles Sumner, and David P. Wright. The two latter were placed in iron, and marched off under a flag of Dutch Yankees from Pennsylvania.

Mr. Sumner is charged with the murder of a notorious free negro, named David

Sawyer, under the following circumstances:

The Yankees have employed for some time past, a lot of free negroes, who scour

the country, ransacking with slaves, and use every means to entice them from their owners. A few days since, upon going into his field, Mr. Sumner discovered several of his slaves in conversation with Sawyer, which greatly enraged him. He ordered his negroes to return to their work, and told Sawyer that he should not speak to his slaves under any pretext, whatever.

Sawyer replied that he had not spoken to them, whereupon, Sawyer called Mr. S.

"a d—d liar," at the same time drawing a huge bowie knife, and advancing towards him. Mr. Sumner immediately seized a fence rail, and commenced baking, while Sawyer advanced and brandish-

ed his knife in a most threatening manner. With the rail, Mr. Sumner succeeded in keeping the villain back until a corner of the fence had been reached, where his gun lay. He then quickly seized the weapon which Sawyer no sooner saw, than he started to run. Mr. Sumner fired the load taking effect in the negro's back, and literally cutting him to pieces. The negro died next day in great agony, and Mr.

Sumner's arrest was effected a few hours

subsequently.

From Mr. Dillard, the Yankees stole some eight or ten thousand pounds of bacon and lard, and then carried him to the Rip Rap, because he refused to take the oath of allegiance to the Lincoln government.

Messrs. Ashburn and Pinner, were arrested upon the charge of having purchased bacon for the Confederate Government.

The Rev. Putnam Owen, of the Baptist Church, was arrested last Sunday at Windsor, Isle of Wight, and Alex. Ashburn, Postmaster at Windsor, and Robt

R. Pinner, assistant P. M., were arrested at the same time.

In many instances, the Lincoln thieves

have swept everything from the premises

visited, not leaving the females and children of the family a pound of meat or a single horse.

A special dispatch to the New York

dated Jackson, July 31, 1862, says that

Gen. Milne had been ordered to occupy the place of Gen. Sherman, and subsequently returned back to Abbeville. The Federals were advancing on

Holly Springs, and were expected to occupy that place today.

Gen. Ruggles addressed a stringent remonstrance to his troops, relative to the conduct of the troops, who, it was said, butterly threatened to hang. Ruggles threatened regulation. Butler replied that one of the TERMS FOR ADVERTISING: DAILY BULLETIN (per annum) $4.00, WEEKLY BULLETIN (per annum) $1.00, CATAWBA JOURNAL (per annum) $1.00.

Our colored carriers are not privileged to sell copies of the Bulletin. Those purchasing from them encourage dishonesty and do us no service.

From the Providence (R.I.) Post, July 13.

Our market quotations this morning show the prices of cotton in this city, and indicate very plainly to what we are coming. We are to realize unmistakably all the horrors of a cotton famine, not only in this country, but throughout Europe. Prices are to go up, not down, until there comes a general financial and commercial smash up. Indeed, we are to get no more cotton in the next three years. Our mills have got to stop, our manufacturers, if they are not blind, may already be ruin staring them in the face. In six months Rhode Island's fate will be sealed.

At last accounts there were only 215,270 bales of cotton in Liverpool, against 1,150,000 bales at a corresponding date last year. Were the mills to run on full time, every pound of cotton in England would be used up in four weeks! India, of which we have heard so much in addition supplies, supplies no part of the deficiency occasioned by the loss of the American article. Instead of sending more than usual to market, there was a fall at last accounts of India cotton, only 45,000 bales, against 240,000 last year, and 280,000 1890. There are millions of people who have heretofore been employed in cotton manufacturing in England, four-fifths of whom are to be wholly out of employment in a short time. And the state of things, so an event fearful to contemplate, is to exist in England.

"But we are to have cotton," say the Abolitionists. "This rebellion is to be crushed, the Southern ports are to be opened, and cotton is to pour in upon us most plentifully." This is the talk of crazy fanatics and fools. The Southern ports may be opened, but we shall get no cotton. The old crop will be destroyed whether the owners like it or not. They dare not resist a measure so essential to their independence, the torch will be applied to every bale that remains unburned today; and not more than enough is being raised for Southern consumption. The uniform testimony is that they are no cotton fields to be seen on the Mississippi. "Plant corn and not cotton," was the order, and it has been strictly obeyed.

"But next year we will get cotton enough," some abolitionist will say. We know better. We shall be lucky if we get a bale a week through the year. No article will be made to raise it until the war is over; and the war will not end, as things now look, until even the foundations of Southern industry, Southern business and Southern social life are overturned. Abolitionism has taken the reins, and it will not permit us a moment's rest until the whole South is thrown into confusion, and all hope of the raising of cotton is destroyed. The Legislature of this fanatical Congress has rendered restoration almost impossible, until nearly the entire white population of the South has been exterminated and the North brought upon itself bankruptcy and ruin. The South will not yield to the policy of the abolitionists while resistance is possible; and in spite of all we can do may prove possible, until Federal treasury notes are sold for ten cents on the dollar.

Do we speak despondingly. We say only the truth. We warned the people in 1862 of just this state of things. We predicted it again in 1869. When the war broke out we believed it might be brought to an end, and the South be brought back into the Union, in a year or two, if we followed the conservative policy and asserted only the supremacy of the Constitution. Instead of this, our whole course has been calculated to exasperate the Southern people, and dishearten Unionists everywhere, and divide the North into factions. We are farther from a final victory than we were one year ago. All that our armies have done has been undone by a reckless Congress and a yielding President. We have spent six millions of dollars and sacrificed fifty thousand lives, and got for it all—what? We have saved Maryland and Kentucky and Missouri, by a show of bayonets, and lost them all by a show of radicalism. The Union cause will hereafter find little hearty sympathy south of Mason's and Dixon's line.

And now we say again, the North is to bear her full share of suffering. Her cotton mills must stop. Her laboring men are to become paupers. The Government is to take care of the negroes; white people, without bread or employment, must take care of themselves.

One of Morgan's tricks. Paroled prisoners recently returned to Knoxville from Cumberland Gap tell the following story of Col. Morgan, which furnished to the Columbia Enquirer by a correspondent of that paper. It seems that the Federal at the Gap had no news whatever of Morgan being between them and their brethren, and kicking up old Harry Generally. As some point between them and Lexington, Morgan secured the telegraph line, and telegraphed them the capture of Vicksburg, including 10,000 prisoners; that McClellan had made a sortie from Berkeley with his whole army, routing the Confederates, and capturing 70,000 prisoners. The telegraphing was kept up for some time between himself and the operator and Gen. Morgan (Yankee) until the famous trick had elicited all the information he wanted. In the meantime the Yankee was making the call of old Cumberland, and when the three times three for the Union, Morgan then very quickly telegraphed the Yankee General over his own wires, announcing that having obtained from his all the information he desired, he would now bid him good morning. That he was indeed turned to rage and indignation; cursed and a bitter word uttered against the noble rebel chieftain.

CHARLOTTE

Sunday Morning, Aug. 2, 1863.

The following reports from the military have reached us since our last issue. We will keep the attention standing in another column until a full report is made out, transmitting the returns from day to day as they may be received.

The Wilmington Journal furnishes the annexed:

JOHNSON. VANCE. Light House Battery, 60. Wash. Light Artillery, 42. In 11th Regiment Vancos majority, 140. The six regt largely for Johnson.

The troops at Fort Fisher gave a decided majority for VANCE.

Those at Fort Caswell and Johnson gave a majority for Johnson.

The troops at Fort Fisher gave a decided majority for VANCE. The troops at Fort Caswell and Johnson gave a majority for Johnson. The troops at Fort Fisher gave a decided majority for VANCE.

A great deal of astonishment and indignation is expressed in Washington on the discovery that a section was smuggled into the Act, supplementary to the Act for the release of certain persons held in service or labor in the District of Columbia, which places the negro upon an equality with a white man in the courts of justice.

Why will our writers, who are correspondents of the Mobile Tribune, permit in using the opprobrious term "rebel," as applied to us by our own countrymen? In it is to defend one's house and friends against a murderous attack of midnight robbers and assassins? Can the Creator rebel against the mere creature of his own hands? Even the London cockneys laugh at and scout such transparent nonsense.

The only rebels in the country to-day are the Lincolnites. They have long since turned traitors to, and trampled under foot every principle of the Declaration of Independence and of the Constitution of the old Union that ever distinguished their political doctrines from the monarchical dogmas of Europe. The principal adopted by our enemy in this atrocious war are not only republican, but they are not even monarchical; they belong to no government on the face of the earth, and they will only be found to exist among a people too infamously degraded and beastly to be capable of any regular system of government whatever, except the government of the heaviest war club.

TRAMPING ON THE CONSTITUTION. The Providence Post shows how Yankee Senators disregard their oaths to support the Constitution. The Senate, on Monday, by a vote of 33 against 17 passed the bill introduced some weeks since, by Mr. Sumner, we think to admit Western Virginia to the rights and privileges of a Sovereign State. This act is in direct violation of Section 31, Article IV, of the Constitution, which reads as follows: "New States may be admitted by the Congress into the Union; but no new State shall be formed or erected within the jurisdiction of any other State; nor any State be formed by the junction of two or more States, or parts of States, without the consent of the Legislatures of the States concerned, as well as of Congress."

In a case so plain no argument is necessary to show that every Senator who voted for this Western Virginia bill trampled his oath in the dust. Do Congressmen think that by such legislation as this they are to restore the Union? We doubt if a single Senator who voted for this bill has one particle of hope of bringing the Southern States again in subjection to the Constitution.

From all accounts the nominal acts passed by the Yankee Congress, have made thousands of indifferent and "Union" Kentucky converts of the cause of the Confederacy. The last act—that is providing for the emancipation of the slaves in the border States—and the request of Lincoln that their members at Washington should return home to tell their constituents to get ready for enforcement of it—have been just too much for them to bear. The same effect has undoubtedly followed in Tennessee. And thus the enemy, as if Providence had directly interposed, has helped our cause to an incalculable degree.

The outrages in Arkansas. We have received confirmation of the report that one of the officers on Gen. Pillow's expedition, near Helena, Ark., was killed on Friday last week. This officer was a member of a regular army, and was killed in a battle with the rebels. The report is confirmed by the fact that the officer's name is listed among the killed in action.

The same informant fully confirms the report of the outrages we have before noticed, and declares that the half has not been told. The planter in the vicinity of Helena have been literally ruined; the most respectable citizens murdered and outraged in their persons and property, and from the brutality of the soldiery, which is apparently sanctioned by the officers, even the ladies are not exempt. The negroes are treated with the most brutal cruelty, which gives the civil disposed among them an opportunity of indulging their depraved passions, supported as they are by the bayonets of the army, and the promises are made that at the end of the war complete emancipation will occur.

This is no fancy sketch; would to heaven for the sake of the suffering people of this country it were. It is a reality that should move every arm to defend our homes and families from the wretches who have turned entirely the rules of civilized warfare. These outrages should be avenged, and similar ones prevented.—Memphis Appeal.

Major General Hardee. There is no officer in the army to whom the people of the Confederacy are more indebted than Major General Hardee. From the beginning of this gigantic struggle his untiring energy and industry, combined with his well-known power of organizing and disciplining troops, have been an invaluable asset to the army and the cause. The Army of the Mississippi is confessedly, at the present time, in a more efficient state than it ever has been, and to Gen. Hardee and Hardee's credit of organization and discipline is mainly due. There is no officer in the army who commands to a greater degree, thoroughness and love of both officers and men. While the delinquent in any branch there is no escape from quick and stern reprimand, he is general or private, the energetic and industrious are sure to meet at his hands encouragement and appreciation. Though an old army officer, there is none of the Fuss and Feather pomposity about him. He is too much in earnest to care about gold lace and gray trappings. At Tupelo, we are informed, he could be seen at all hours reviewing and inspecting the various departments of the army—there, everywhere—sometimes accompanied by an aide-de-camp, sometimes alone. There is, probably, no general officer in the army so well known personally to the troops as Gen. Hardee. The cool, unobscured bravery of the man was exemplified at Shiloh. Always in advance, he was constantly exposed to the hottest fire. Some times riding in his horse in this severe part of the battle, he would give his orders when sitting in his office. Though shot in the shoulder, his coat riddled with balls and his horse wounded, he seemed totally unconscious of the "unpleasantness of the day" by which he was environed, and never for a moment sought "sheltered positions." The black pony he rode is known all over the army. If the ventures to ride out on any other, he is sure to be addressed by some soldier, with "General, where's the little black horse we saw him always ride on?" Such little incidents as this continually occurring show the terms he is on with his troops. A strict disciplinarian, none fear him but delinquents; and we have heard an officer say that he would rather face a twelve pound battery than Gen. Hardee's reprimand. The enemy have paid a high price for his abilities by adopting his system of tactics in their armies. An accomplished soldier, brave, energetic and chivalric, there are none more entitled to a lasting place in the affections of the people of the Confederate States than Major General Hardee.
